Leadership & Management Facilitator

Nick Reed is a breakthrough coach and certified NLP trainer, specialising in helping people be, do and have the success they deserve in all aspects of their life.

He trained as a master level practitioner of NLP, and through his passion for making a difference in people's lives and an appetite for performance psychology, he rapidly became a member of the senior training team for Reed-Robbins Performance Solutions.

He facilitates our entire suite of leadership and management programmes, often travelling around the UK and Europe to deliver training on presenting, influencing and communication skills. He also delivers our flagship leadership programme Evolving The Tribe. His training is truly transformative and he builds incredible rapport that helps to bond teams and facilitate change.

He qualified as an NLP Trainer with Tad James, one of the first trainers of NLP in the world in 2015.

Together, he and Jess teach NLP to individuals and organisations including EDF Energy, Vodafone, Everything Everywhere, Essex County Council, Virgin Media, British Gas, TNT, Wickes, Travis Perkins, Urban Outfitters and Comic Relief.

Nick is a passionate golfer, cyclist and all round sportsman and enjoys using his own experience to coach and train other athletes in his success principles, particularly in avoiding and overcoming repetitive injuries.

Before becoming a coach, Nick enjoyed running a successful plumbing and heating business but his life completely transformed after discovering NLP.

Nick had suffered from sleeping problems for years that traditional treatments were unable to resolve. Eventually, this drove him to seek a more powerful solution in the form of NLP, which after just a short time, resolved the issue allowing him to embrace life at a whole new level. He then used the tools to transform all areas of his life including finances, relationships and health so that he could live the life he dreamed of.

After experiencing the powerful changes that can be achieved, Nick is now passionate about making a difference to everyone he meets. He leads by example and is constantly expanding his own comfort zone as well as deepening his knowledge and skill set in all areas of personal success.
